INTRODUCTION

Let your potential clients know why they should have a Facebook marketing campaign and why your company is the best option for the job. Be concise here but informative, and highlight your company's strengths and accomplishments. Using images is a good way to convey information as well, or show a photo of your staff.

Facebook is one of the most popular social media platforms in the world, with more than 1.6 billion users. And people like to spend a lot of time on it, whether all at once or periodically throughout the day. This means there are billions and billions of eyes constantly scrolling through posts, videos, photos, status updates, and, yes, advertisements.

And when it comes to advertising, there is no company in the world that has more information about its users than Facebook. It includes much more than just your age, gender, and alma mater. While those things are valuable for marketing purposes, Facebook also knows which websites you visit and how often, how much time you spend doing various things online, and what you purchase. From a business marketing standpoint, that stuff is gold. And thankfully it's right there for the taking.

We are compact and bright team of marketing professionals, with an emphasis on social media campaigns. We've helped startups, and big corporations realize the potential in Facebook marketing to grow a customer base, retain those customers, and bring new ones on board.

HOW WE MARKET ON FACEBOOK

Facebook is much more than a social media platform. In fact, it can be a huge resource for [Client.Company] if used properly. Let us show how we can do that.

1. IDENTIFY AUDIENCE

First and foremost, Shubh Labh Digital Advertising Agency needs to know everything we can about your existing customer base. This includes what kind of habits they have in social media and elsewhere online. This information will also inform our approach to attracting new customers.

2. FIGURE OUT THE RIGHT APPROACH

After identifying your audience, we will figure out how to most effectively communicate with them. What do they respond to and why? This will also inform future marketing ideas...

3. SCALING YOUR CAMPAIGN

There are many ways we will approach your Facebook Marketing campaign, but unless we are targeting the right audience then it will be a disaster. Here is a rundown of how we can scale your marketing on Facebook to optimize results:

Custom: Using your customer database, we will upload phone numbers, email addresses, Facebook user IDs, and app user IDs. That information will then be matched to as many user profiles as possible.

Lookalike: Now that we have a picture of your customer database, Facebook can find similar users to open up a whole new set of potential customers.

Location, Location, Location: This is important, especially for a local business. Ads will specifically target a region, city, state, or country that can purchase your products.

Age, Gender, Language: Honing in on the right age, gender, and native language of users is important to effective marketing. Luckily, this is easy to do on Facebook.

Detailed Targeting: This approach is used to target new customers or people who've never heard of your business before. It involves demographics, interests, behaviors, and other categories.

4. TWICE AS NICE

If we find that one advertisement did better than others, we will take note. That ad can be repackaged with a few modifications to look new again, and thus attract just as much attention as the first time.

5. REPORTING AND MONITORING

There is must to be gleaned from your Facebook marketing campaign. Shubh Labh Digital Advertising Agency will measure analytics data such as advertising metrics, page-level metrics, engagement rate, total page “likes,” and other metrics. We will compile reports and present them to [Client.Company] on a monthly basis.

6. SCHEDULE

This is all up to you and how your company works, so scale it appropriately. If you work better under time estimates rather than set dates, make that clear.

Facebook marketing campaigns are an ongoing process. We respond to what works and move on fast from what doesn't work. Therefore, we anticipate at minimum of two weeks from the start to the date your campaign is launched. After that, we monitor and adjust, presenting reports to [Client.Company] on a monthly basis.
